Beef burger remains king

Beef burgers & pizza remain the nation's favourite dishes when dining out according to new data from Horizons.

The foodservice market trends expert has analysed more than 800 menus from pubs, restaurants, hotels and quick-serve restaurants.

The information was collated from 121 operators including Jamie's Italian, Wetherspoon, Holiday Inn and Pret A Manger.

The latest figures (winter 2015) show that beef burgers remain the number one menu choice in hotels and pubs, whilst pizza takes the top spot in restaurants, compared to summer 2015. Despite pizzas scoring lower down in pubs, they are still rising up the rankings from 19 in summer 2015 to 14 in winter 2015.

The average price of pizza across the three sectors was £11.15 – whilst the nation's number one, beef burger, is over £1 cheaper at an average £9.91. Chicken burgers maintained a consistent third place, priced at an average £8.87. Fish and chips has dropped in popularity to number five.

Steaks continue to be the most expensive main course, with rib eye also showing an increase in menu presence.

New to hotel menus are salad, chicken and ribs, lamb, paninis, pork loin and aubergine. Traditional dishes meanwhile, such as sausage and mash and scampi and chips, have all fallen down the rankings across the three sectors.
